THREATENING GESTURES.

The Origin of Shaking the Clutched Hand

In an Opponent's Face.

I would observe that the shaking of the clenched hand as a demonstration of hostility has apparently no relation in its origin with the custom of using the fists after the manner of the pugilist. The gesture is in use all the world over, but the custom of fighting with the naked fists is strictly local and does not appear to have any very great antiquity. A Frenchman or an Italian will shake his fist much more readily than an Englishman, yet neither of these peoples has attained to that pitch of civilization marked by the custom of arriving at an agreement by the disputants pounding one another's fists.

In every case, except where the demonstrator has some familiarity with the art of boxing and has not lost all self control, the fist is not displayed in a manner which suggests its use as a punching organ, but is held as high as the head, with the line of the knuckles vertical, in exactly the position, in fact, as though the fingers grasped a weapon. To shake a spear or a club at a foe is a common way of conveying a threat among all primitive savages, and if no weapon is within reach an expressive pantomime of the action is performed with the hand only.

It is noteworthy that women and girls who are less specialized than men as regards such matters, and whose instinctive actions are therefore much more valuable to the naturalist, not only shake the fist in this, but generally persist in holding the hand in some unsentimental position when they endeavor to emulate the pugilistic sex.

If the gesture of shaking the fist should prove to be instinctive—and this point must at present be held to be somewhat doubtful—it will be of peculiar interest to anthropologists, since it appears to be derived from the habit of using some sort of weapon in striking at an enemy, and the great majority of instinctive acts undoubtedly date back to a stage of existence when no such artificial aids were invented.—Nineteenth Century.

Gluttonous Englishmen.

Bluffkins wandered in at the club the other night and drew his chair close to the fire.

"I wouldn't be an Englishman for anything," he ejaculated. "They have the most gluttonous appetites on record."

"You can't prove that, bah Jove!" said Mr. Algernon Hawkins, who lived on chops and swore by her majesty.

"I can," replied Bluffkins, with unruffled composure, "and here is the proof. I was riding home in an electric last night. Two Englishmen sat next to me. 'So have I,' said the other. 'But mine is the best on earth. It cooks my breakfast in 'alf an hour.' said the first. 'Jove!' said the second, 'that isn't anything. I can eat my stave in five minutes.'"

And even Mr. Algernon Hawkins acknowledged that the Englishman did have a pretty solid appetite.—Boston Budget.

English Parsons.

The fox hunting parson, as much sportsman as parson, has somewhat died out, while his place is taken by the muscular Christian who plays with the village eleven and heads all the local sports and games. This kind has seldom much spiritual hold over his people, but what he wants in spiritual influence he supplies by his manly love and respect. "A right good sort" he is called by the men, whose in him only themselves, educated, elevated, enlarged, but who do not view him in any way as an inspired messenger.

He is a man like themselves, the parson, and they mind him when he speaks to them, as privates might their colonel, but not as a devout Catholic would his director. The difference is subtle, but it is real and significant.—London Queen.

He Preferred to Sell Cattle.

It is a matter of common history that bribery and corruption were largely resorted to in order to effect the union of England and Scotland, which took place in 1707.

Lord Seafield, the chancellor of the last Scottish parliament, accepted a gift of £500 to vote for the union and was reproached by his brother for taking this bribe. His lordship retaliated by calling his brother a cattle dealer.

"Weel," was the brother's reply to this taunt, "better sell nowt (horneed cattle) than nations."—New York Journal.

May Suffer For Exercise.
 If this constant improvement in agricultural machinery goes on, by which the farmer now rides his plow, rake, harrow, seeder, mower, binder, etc., farming will soon be classed among the sedentary occupations.—New York Herald.

BELIEVES HE IS A LEPER.

Strange Delusion Entertained by a Wealthy Spaniard For Fifty Years.

Situated within half an hour's ride from the City of Mexico is the country place of a man who for 40 years has been a voluntary recluse, seeing only one face in that time and as much dead to the world as if his body were indeed decayed. This man is the wealthy Spaniard, Don Pedro Guierres, at one time an officer in the royal army of Spain, but who for nearly half a century has been a prey to the delusion that he is a leper or about to become one.

His reason for this horrible fancy is that when a young man of 25 he went on a visit to Honolulu and there met a lady whom he married and whom he carried back to Madrid with him. After several years of happiness this lady was seized with a malady that was finally pronounced to be leprosy. The shock of this decision unhinged her mind and in a short while she died by her own hands. Her husband, with this double blow to bear, became a monomaniac on the subject that had deprived him of his beloved wife and at last grew to believe that he, too, was leprosy.

Resigning from the army, he sold his estates in Spain, and coming to Mexico purchased the place where he now is. He has fitted up for him a suit of apartments in which he has spent every hour of his life since. His servant is only allowed to enter one room at a time, when the door retires into another until the man's work is done. Twice a month a priest goes to confess him, but he sits outside a little inner window through which he converses with his unseen patient.

This unfortunate man never even walks in his garden, which is, however, completely screened from view by a fence 8 feet high, without a crack between. This exercise he refrains from, fearing that it will prolong his life, which he bears only as a heavy burden imposed by Providence. One relaxation besides music he allows himself, and that is books and newspapers. He is an accomplished linguist and subscribes to all the leading journals and magazines in the world, while he regularly employs an agent to find out and send him all the books published that are worth perusing. His will provides that his servant, who was once with him in the army, and through all has served him faithfully, is to place him, when he dies, in his coffin and to allow no one to look upon him, and that he is to be buried thus on the estate.—Philadelphia Times.

Doctors' Bills in China.

We occidentals only pay our doctors when we are sick, and sometimes not even then. The Celestial method, as shown by the example of the emperor of China, is pay the doctor only when one is well. As soon as the emperor is sick, it is a notification to his physicians that their salary is cut off till he is perfectly well again. The passionate zeal with which the regulars go to work to get his majesty back where their salaries will begin again is said to be something astounding. The result is that the emperor is about the healthiest man standing on the planet, and his physicians seldom lose a day's salary.—Ashton Reporter.

Crafty Reynard.

A most singular occurrence happened in a fox hunt in Grafton county, N. H. A fox was started, and after a lively chase Reynard, being closely pressed, ran into a cleft in some rocks. A foxhound was immediately after the fox and entered the fissure at its heels with such velocity that he stuck fast in a narrow space. Seeing the dog could not release himself, the fox turned and went out where it came in, squeezing over or under the dog in some way. The hound was wedged so tightly in the narrow space that the hunters were unable to release him for a day or two.—Lewiston Journal.

Tyndall's Modesty.

The late Professor Tyndall was not possessed of too much of the modesty that is supposed to characterize genius. He was dogmatic in his views and as ready in the most friendly way, to teach Mr. Gladstone politics as to instruct Mr. Chamberlain in business matters. It has been said of him that he never had any doubt about anything, from home rule to spontaneous generation, from the composition of dust to the origin of things.—London Truth.

Poisonous Medicines.

Great care should be taken in administering remedies in the form of tinctures which have stood for a long time in small vials in the family medicine closet. When the bottles happen to be loosely corked, the alcohol readily evaporates, leaving the drug in the form of a concentrated tincture the pharmacopoeial dose of which might produce very serious if not fatal results.—San Francisco Examiner.

Another Mean Man.

Another mean man has been heard from. A gulf storm blew an editor into the top of a tall pine, where he remained three days and nights. When the owner of the land discovered him, he presented a bill for three days' rent and then had him arrested for trespass.—Atlanta Constitution.

Ditto.

An old farmer, who lived in Milton many years ago and dealt in the only grocery in the town in those days, was often puzzled in looking over his grocery bill by seeing the word "ditto" occur in it frequently. It was to "1 lb. tea"—"to 1 lb. ditto." Not having the advantage of a commercial education, he was puzzled over this word "ditto." At last he spoke to his better half about it.

"Susan Jane," said he, "this ere's a putty business. I should like to know what you hev done with so much of this 'ere ditto'!"

"Ditto, ditto," repeated the old lady, "why, Dan'l, I never had a pound of ditto in the house in all my life!"

"But it's here—charged on the bill."

"It's a cheat, Dan'l—never got it." Dan'l started back to the "store" in high dudgeon at having been charged for things he had never received.

"See here, Square," said he to the grocer, "I shan't stand this kind of business. Wife says she haint had a pound of this 'tarnel ditto' in the house in her life, and I won't pay for it."

The grocer thereupon explained the meaning of the term, and the customer went home satisfied. His wife inquired if he had found out the meaning of the word "ditto."

"Hev," he replied, "and as near as I can get the hang on't it means that I'm a 'tarnel old fool, and that you are ditto."—Boston Herald.

Photographing Garfield.

There was something of the noble Roman in Garfield's profile—in fine, the outward evidence of those strong qualities which made him bear up so heroically during those three months of suffering after the assassin's bullet entered his back. He wore a slouch hat and was dressed in the customary senatorial prince albert coat on the day he came to the studio. The hat was held in his hand while I was taking the impressions. When I mentioned that I was done, he arose, and placing the hat carelessly on his head started to walk away. "Stop!" I shouted excitedly. "Remain just as you are!" But a picture in a slouch hat will not look very statesmanlike," he said jokingly. "I want it just the way I am." "I'll make two. You may have one, and I will keep the other."

The portrait which resulted was the most characteristic of the man ever made, but the "undignified" headgear forbade its wide distribution as a campaign poster. I am happy in knowing that Mr. Garfield himself was personally pleased with it.—Napoleon Sarony in New York Herald.

French Schools.

"Every child in France at this hour," says the complacent minister in the well known story, "is studying the same lesson," and it is practically the same for every undergraduate still. Uniform knowledge and uniform precision, with uniform justice for every young citizen, are thus secured, and what are commonly reckoned the "essential qualities of the French mind" are unquestionably developed.

Not only the symmetry, but the working of the system is perfect. The grande armee is gone; even the code has its uncertainties; new governments and principles come and go, but the University of France has sat as it was set—above the reach of time or politics, as becomes the mighty spiritual organization it is.—Fortnightly Review.

Irritability in Plants.

Mr. Ernest Walker of New Albany, Ind., has recently contributed some interesting notes on the manner in which the common wild sour grass—as it is called Oxalis stricta—expels its seeds. They are thrown to a great distance by the sudden disruption of the capsule. He finds Oxalis violacea has the same power. The common balsam of our garden, or as it is sometimes called in American floriculture, "lady slipper," does the same, especially when the seed pods are grasped. This and the oxalis belong to the same natural order of plants. The garden balsam derived its Latin name,impatiens, from this characteristic. Possibly most species of oxalis are irritable.—Meehan's Monthly.

Whistling as a Sin.

Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made barren to them by the whistler. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be purified for 40 days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in north Germany the villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.—Detroit Free Press.

The Chief End.

Dr. Cuyler tells the story of a little boy, the son of good Presbyterian parents, who was asked the question in the catechism, "What is the chief end of man?" and answered it, "Man's chief end is to glorify God and amuse him forever." "There are too many men," says Dr. Cuyler, "who act as if that were their chief end."—Ram's Horn.

H. K. GRADICE EDITOR

Why a Town Paper Should Be Supported.

THE Sausalito News gives the following three reasons why the local paper should be supported:

First—Because, while a standing advertisement of the village and its business, it gives more free and frankness puffs and explanations about the town and its people than all others combined.

Second—Because it is ever on the alert to discover something to say, calculated to increase the town's population, and never allows an opportunity to pass, to plead for home enterprises.

Third—Because it stands ready to resent at the risk of being clubbed, any and all insinuations against the character, intelligence and morals of the community and as a general thing, lives on half rations and dies in rags for the glory of being a beneficial slave to the people of the town in which it is published.

EDITOR Wadsworth of the Nevada City Herald admonishes girls to learn how to cook. He says the learning will never go amiss. The thousands of homeless young women you read about are clerks, typewriters, milliners and everything but cooks. A good cook and laundress is very seldom out of work. That is first rate advice and it followed there will be greater peace and happiness for the women of the country. Pleasure and enjoyment is not obtained by learning to play the piano or a type writer, but if the art of cooking is combined with them the wife or daughter will find that she has laid the foundation which will make her home a happy one.

MENULTY, who was to have been hanged yesterday, had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Markham last Thursday. The action of the Governor will be approved by nine-tenths of the people of California; not because they do not believe in capital punishment, but for the simple reason that the man had been tortured enough the past six years for a crime which was not premeditated. The news of the commutation was received in this place with satisfaction.

JIM CORBETT is still the champion fist fighter of the world. In his combat with Charley Mitchell last Thursday he knocked the Englishman out easily in three rounds. At no time during the fight was Mitchell "in it." Jim will now have to fight Jackson. "Petah" is a great scrapper. No one knows this better than Corbett, who once fought a draw with the sable gladiator.

ALL the bodies of the seven victims of the Austin Creek railway disaster have been recovered except that of Station Agent Sabine of Cazadero. His life is insured for $2,000, but unless his body is found his widow cannot collect the money, as it is necessary to prove the cause of death. If the body is not found it is doubtful if the insurance can ever be collected.

JAS. AUSTIN died on Thursday night of last week in Rincon Valley. The deceased was well-known in and around Santa Rosa, where he had resided for twenty-three years.

The success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in effecting a speedy cure for colds, croup and whooping cough has brought it into great demand. Messrs. Pontius & Son, of Cameron, Ohio, say that it has gained a reputation second to none in that vicinity. Jas. M. Queen, of Johnston, W. Va., says it is the best he ever used. B. F. Jones, druggist, Winona, Miss., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is perfectly reliable. I have always warranted it and it never failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.

A German physiologist who counted the hairs on different human heads states that taking four heads of hair of equal weight, the number of hairs according to color was as follows: Red, 90,000; black, 103,000; brown, 109,000; blonde, 140,000.

Fifty-one metals are now known to exist. Four hundred years ago only seven were known.

GLEN ELLEN.

A Case of Mistaken Identity—Personal Notes.

Miss L. Martens of Healdsburg visited relatives in Glen Ellen last Wednesday.

J. W. Hadcock and family have removed to Santa Rosa, where they will reside in future.

Mrs. John J. Willson, who has been suffering from la grippe, is gradually improving.

The condition of Mrs. John M. Hendley, who has been quite ill the past week, has greatly improved.

Mrs. Chas. J. Poppe, who has been seriously ill the past week, has greatly improved and will soon be about again.

Miss L. Driscoll of Grass Valley is visiting her sister Mrs. Wm. Sobbe and intends making a stay of several weeks.

Last Monday evening the down train on the Southern Pacific road ran over and killed a valuable cow belonging to Mrs. B. K. Williams.

Messrs. Troll and Elliott, who will conduct the coming Sunday picnic, have completed all arrangements and the picnic is an assured fact. Extensive preparations and improvements will be made in the Park before the picnic season opens.

Hearing of the escape of Geo. Bruggy and other prisoners from the Santa Rosa Jail Deputy Sheriff Beatty and a small army of local warriors have been guarding the bridges and cross-roads in this vicinity the past few nights. Evidently Bruggy was informed of this manœuvre and is heading in an opposite direction.

Owing to the heavy rain the financial outcome of the Midwinter Fair ball given at the Mervyn Hotel last Friday evening was not as good as was desired. Some coin for the Fair, however, was realized. Socially the ball was a success.

Last Tuesday night as M. F. Turley, our village smithy, was quietly and peacefully winding his way to his lodgings and all unconscious of trouble ahead he was suddenly confronted by a man who presented a rifle at his head and commanded him to halt. He obeyed the order with alacrity. Explanations then followed. It was a case of mistaken identity on the part of one of the guards of Deputy Sheriff Beatty, who mistook him for an escapee from the Santa Rosa Jail. In describing the incident Mike remarked that the gun looked to him like "Big Betsey" and that he could almost see the bullet move.

Damage by the Late Storm.

Roads, fences and bridges, particularly the latter, suffered considerable damage in this valley during the late storm. Several of the county bridges across Sonoma creek were undermined and were damaged more or less. The bridge which crosses Biggins' creek on the Petaluma road was completely destroyed and a temporary structure is being erected in its stead by Supervisor Thompson.

At Embarcadero considerable fencing was carried away by the raging waters of Sonoma creek and the surrounding country was between two and three feet under water.

Wm. Goodman, Jas. McMackin and Edwin Lord were the principal sufferers down that way. The levee constructed by Captain Pless with the dredger Nevada, surrounding the Senator Jones tract seven miles south of town, stood the rushing waters and high tide nobly. The levee at no time was in danger.

The county road near the residence of Robt. Hall was invaded by Sonoma Creek and if a bulkhead is not built by the Supervisors at that point before another winter sets in, the road at that place will eventually be the center of the creek.

"In buying a cough medicine for children," says H. A. Walker, a prominent druggist of Ogden, Utah, "never be afraid to buy Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it and relief is sure to follow. I particularly recommend Chamberlain's because I have found it to be safe and reliable. It is intended especially for colds, cough, croup and whooping cough." 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.

HEART DISEASE 30 YEARS.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., April 8th, 1892.
Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
GENTLEMEN: I had been troubled with HEART DISEASE FOR THE LAST 30 YEARS, and although I was treated by the physicians and tried many remedies, I grew steadily worse until I was completely prostrated and confined to my bed without any hope of recovery. I would have very much to say for the New Heart Cure, which I have taken, and it has cured me. I was with the greatest difficulty that my circulation could be started, and I was brought back to consciousness again. While in this condition I tried your NEW HEART CURE, and began to improve from the first, and now I am able to do a good day's work for me 65 years of age. I give you MY NEW HEART CURE, all the credit for my recovery. It is over six months since I have taken any, although I keep a bottle in the house in case I should need it. I have also used your NERVE AND LIVER PILLS, and think a great deal of them.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Schocken keeps the best and cheapest groceries.

The Union Hotel is a first-class house in every respect.

If you want a good roast or steak go to Weyl's meat market.

Weyl's is the place to get a bargain in groceries.

The Anderson-Nelson whiskey is a specialty at the Bank Exchange.

The best of beef, mutton, pork, veal, sausages, etc., at Weyl's meat market.

Schocken always keeps on hand a complete stock of fresh groceries and dry goods.

Weyl's meat market is supplied with everything kept in a first-class butcher shop.

The Sonoma House is conducted as a first-class hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher.

Families visiting Sonoma will find the Sonoma House a first-class hotel in every respect.

New single harness from $5 per set up at George Brittenbach's harness shop, Napa street, Sonoma.

If you want the very best of wine, liquors or cigars go to the Union Hotel, and you will be politely served by Mr. A. A. Enke.

Simmons Liver Regulator cured me of general debility and loss of appetite.—Mrs. Edmund Fitton, Frankford, Pa.

Visitors to Sonoma on business or pleasure will find the Sonoma House as conducted by Harry Fisher the hotel of Sonoma.

The meals to be had at the Sonoma House, now kept by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher, are the best to be had in any hotel north of San Francisco.

The new residence of F. L. Clark on Broadway is being pushed rapidly forward toward completion by H. C. Mohn, the architect and builder.

The Union Hotel bar, under the supervision of A. A. Enke, will be supplied with the very best of wines, whiskeys and cigars to be had in the market.

The appraisers of the estate of the late Mrs. Kate Johnson will visit Sonoma next week to set a value on the property belonging to the estate in this valley.

The Union Hotel dining rooms, since the recent change of proprietorship, have underwent a change for the better. Under the supervision of Mrs. S. E. Jones the tables are all that could be desired by the most fastidious epicure.

Mrs. Josephine Kiser has petitioned the probate department of the Superior Court for letters of administration on the estate of her deceased husband. It is set forth in the petition that the value of the estate is $7,850. The attorney for the estate is Robt. A. Poppe.

D. Calloway of this place, who was appointed by the Board of Supervisors Superintendent of the County Farm, has resigned the position. Upon looking over the farm and sizing up the work to be performed he found that the salary of the office would not justify him in attempting to carry on the work in an honest and conscientious manner, hence his resignation.

A large wild-cat was treed and killed in the hills north of town last Monday by Gus. Weyl and Fred. Foutts. The animal measured three feet in length, was fifteen inches high and weighed twenty pounds. When started up by the pack of hounds which accompanied the young men the wild-cat was in the company of two others, which managed to elude the keen scent of the dogs. A silver grey fox was also run down and killed by the same hunters and hounds in the Brewster canyon one day last week.

The hills surrounding the valley are alive with wild pigeons. They congregate in flocks of several hundred, and frequently a flock numbering at least a thousand are seen. They are extremely wild and cannot be approached within shooting distance of a shot gun. They are easily bagged, however, by the hunter taking his stand under a tree and shooting them when they alight on the branches overhead. Many of these pigeons are almost twice as large as the tame pigeon. At the present time they are in excellent condition for the table.

For pains in the chest there is nothing better than a flannel cloth saturated with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It will produce a counter irritation without blistering, and is not so disagreeable as mustard; in fact is much superior to any plaster on account of its pain-relieving qualities. If used in time it will prevent pneumonia. 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.

The Sonoma House, Harry Fisher proprietor, is a popular resort for commercial travelers.

YOUNG LADY SOMNAMBULIST.

She Arises from Her Bed and Swims Sonoma Creek.

A young woman residing in this valley, whose name we withhold for family reasons, is a victim to sleep-walking.

A short time ago, attired in a white night-dress, she unconsciously arose from her bed near the hour of midnight and was seen by parties perambulating near her home, which is in the upper part of the valley, who mistook the apparition for a ghost and fled in terror.

At other times the somnambulist has been observed at an early hour in the morning by train hands standing motionless on both the Donahue and Southern Pacific railroad tracks, and has narrowly escaped being run over on several occasions.

A few weeks ago she arose from her bed about three o'clock in the morning and was seen to approach Sonoma creek in her night robes. Upon reaching the stream the young woman waded in for a short distance, as if feeling her way, and then swam safely across. Upon reaching the opposite bank she awoke and, half-frightened to death, and dripping wet and shivering from the cold, made her way to the house of a neighbor where she was kindly cared for and then taken to her home.

Somnambulists have been known to do many strange things while walking in their sleep but this is the first case that has ever come under our observation where a person has swam across a stream on a bitter cold night without awakening.

One night a couple of years ago a young married woman residing one mile west of Sonoma arose from her sleep, and barefooted and with only a night dress on walked into town unobserved and sat down on the platform at the Donahue depot, when she suddenly awoke. She was badly frightened and jumping up ran rapidly home where she arrived almost out of breath. She then awoke her husband, who had not missed her, and related her strange experience.

One night a couple of years ago a young married woman residing one mile west of Sonoma arose from her sleep, and barefooted and with only a night dress on walked into town unobserved and sat down on the platform at the Donahue depot, when she suddenly awoke. She was badly frightened and jumping up ran rapidly home where she arrived almost out of breath. She then awoke her husband, who had not missed her, and related her strange experience.

BRUGGY ESCAPES

HE SAWS HIS WAY OUT OF THE SANTA ROSA JAIL.

Joined in His Flight by Another Convicted Murderer and Other Prisoners.

Bruggy, the thrice-sentenced-to-be-hanged murderer, broke out of the Santa Rosa Jail last Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock and is still at large.

In his escape and flight he was joined by John L. Espey, under sentence of 25 years in San Quentin for murder, two burglars named Craig and Smith, young Pridgett, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, and a petty offender named Owen.

The break was made while Jailor Harry Weise was absent at supper.

One of the cross bars of the cage in the north end of the jail, near the water closet, was sawed out and through the small opening thus created the six prisoners managed to crawl. Once outside the cage it was an easy matter to climb the steel lattice work to the top of the cage.

The other prisoners in jail, some thirty in number, remained behind as they were for the most part serving out light sentences for petty offences.

One of the prisoners who remained behind says that Bruggy told him three weeks ago that a break for liberty was to be made. He states that a file was first brought into the jail two weeks ago. With its aid keys were made which unlocked Bruggy's and Espey's cells. An impression was first taken by means of tin foil.

The original plan was to make keys to unlock all the inner doors, and when the time came to hold up the guard in the front office of the jail, as in the Evans and Morral escape. This plan was given up when a steel saw made its appearance in the jail. Bruggy and Espey then decided to cut out through the cage and break the glass in the roof from the top of the main cage.

Within the last few days all of the forty odd inmates of the jail knew of the proposed jailbreak, and all "stood in," to use the informant's phrase, to assist the two arch conspirators.

Two iron bars in the lattice work of the cage were cut Monday evening. The remaining bars, the cutting of which was required to open a square, were cut through Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. It had been remarked by the outsiders that for two or three days past the prisoners had been unusually noisy, singing, shouting, etc. It is now understood that this was part of the cleverly-planned scheme.

While the majority of the prisoners were creating as much disturbance as possible the steel saw was being used on the cage in the north end of the jail. The last two bars were cut in fourteen minutes.

When everything was in readiness at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening Bruggy called a council of war and arranged for certain prisoners to guard the hole in the cage and not to let anyone out until Espey and he had a half hour's start. An effort was made to do so, but Bruggy and Espey had not been out more than ten minutes before the others followed.

Bruggy had two revolvers and Espey one.

At latest accounts Bruggy, who had evidently separated from the other escapes, was seen near Calistoga.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, JAN. 27, 1894

Hotel With His Own Petard.

Charles Thompson, secretary to the first American congress, once boarded in the family of a school-teacher named Dove. This man Dove was a humorist, and in his school, instead of whipping an offensive pupil, he made him ridiculous in the eyes of his schoolmates. The birch was stuck into the back part of the collar of the culprit, who, with this badge of disgrace, was made to stand upon the platform.

If boys were late in arriving at school, a committee of five or six scholars was sent into the streets, with a bell and lighted lantern, to hunt up the delinquents and escort them to the schoolhouse.

One day the scholars enjoyed the sport mentioned in "Hamlet"—"to have the engineer hoist by his own petard." Dove had always professed a willingness to have his own punishment meted out to himself in case he transgressed the rules.

One morning the teacher was late, and a committee of boys, with bell and lantern, meeting him on his way to school, escorted him through the streets, to the amusement of the spectators. He had the good sense to submit quietly.—Youth's Companion.

Yellowstone Park Vandals.

The vandal, with his barbarous and active knife and pencil, who has an insane longing to associate his meaningless name with the great places of nature and history, has not so free a hand in the Yellowstone reservation as he enjoyed before the park was guarded by the soldiers of the United States army. It has been the custom of this creature to carve his initials on the front of the terraces and to write his name in the liquid left in the pools after a geyser has been playing. Years after the writing in the water the name is legible and the pencil marks are fresh, so slowly do the geysers build up their deposits.

The Upper Geyser basin is 50 miles from Fort Yellowstone, at the Mammoth Hot Springs. The telegraph is the enemy of offenders the world over, and if a tourist writes his name in a pool, he may be telegraphed to the post through which he must pass when his trip is done, and there he is very likely to meet a captain of cavalry, who will hand him a rubber and send him back 50 miles under guard to erase his name.—London Million.

How the Liberty Boys Did It.

It will be remembered that a dozen or more of the collisions between the British and the Liberty Boys of New York just prior to the active outbreak of the Revolution grew out of the posting of incendiary bills and broadsides.

The manner in which these bills were posted is curious. According to the diary of John Parks, written in 1775, the work was accomplished in the following manner: "The method lately used in New York to post up inflammatory hand bills was the same used in England at the time of the Pretender. It was done by a man who carried a little boy in a box like a magic lantern, and while he leaned against the wall, as if to rest himself, the boy drew back the slide, pasted on the paper and shutting himself up again the man took the proper occasion to walk off to another resting place."—New York Herald.

The Atlantic's Bed.

Proceeding westward from the Irish coast the ocean bed deepens very gradually. For the first 250 miles the gradient is but six feet to the mile; in the next 20 miles the fall is over 9,000 feet, and so precipitous is the descent that in many places depths of 1,200 to 1,600 fathoms are encountered in very close proximity to the 100 fathom line. With the depth of 1,800 to 2,000 fathoms the sea bed becomes a slightly undulating plain 1,200 miles wide. The greatest depth in the Atlantic is 300 miles or so northward of the island of St. Thomas, where soundings of 3,875 fathoms were obtained, or nearly four miles in depth.—Nautical Magazine.

Uses of Amber.

Very few people know that amber, so much used in pipestems, is put to other uses. It makes with other ingredients the finest kind of varnish, such as is used on watch dials. Amber is brought in bulk to this country. Pure amber is valuable, while the clouded material is much cheaper. Varnish factories buy up all the old pipestems possible, and when one takes a pipe to a store to have new amber furnished he must not suppose the old piece is thrown away. He may be carrying the result of the old piece around with him at a later day and not know it on his watch dial.—Philadelphia Call.

Nathan Hale's Sweetheart.

The story that Nathan Hale's sweetheart died unmarried is not correct. Her name was Alice Adams, and she married Eleazer Kiny, and after his death William Lawrence. She died in Hartford in 1845 at the age of 88. Her granddaughter, who was with her when she died, testified to the truth of the story that in her last hours her mind reverted to the love of her youth, and she faintly uttered the words, "Write to Nathan." It was her last utterance.—Buffalo Courier.

THE LONG STEMMED PIPE.

It Has No Place in the Rush and Whirl of Modern Life.

If you will consider what a large part smoking and eating play in the best of Dickens' writings, and how utterly impossible it would have been for Washington Irving to paint the staid gravity of the early Dutch settlers on Manhattan island without their pipes, one can see what a pity it is that pipe smoking is so fast passing away in the rush and whirl of our modern life. You cannot smoke a long stem pipe in a hurry. It requires calm and leisure and a good conscience if you would get the full aroma of the "new ground" tobacco.

Let me give you a touching bit of pathos that I heard when a boy at Hampden Sidney college in a lecture given by Oliver P. Baldwin, then editor of The Dispatch. It was a description of the death of an old Virginia farmer:

"The old man, with flowing white locks, sat in an armchair under an apple tree loaded with blushing fruit. The tree, like himself, was old, for he had planted it with his own hands, and together they had seen many summers come and go. The mellow sunlight of an October afternoon fell in slanting rays about his head and tinged with deeper red the apples above him. In one hand he held the long stem of his pipe, while above him circled the wreaths of gray smoke, which lingered lovingly for a moment and then floated away in infinite space. At his feet on the greenward lay his dog, deaf and nearly blind with old age. Some autumn insect was lazily chirping and droning in the grass. The lengthening shadows were falling far toward the east. Some one of the household passing noticed that the whiffs of smoke came at longer and longer intervals from his pipe, and at length ceased altogether.

"They thought the old man had fallen asleep, and so he had, but it was the sleep that comes at the end of life, for his gentle spirit had floated upward to the realms of light as quietly and peacefully as the wreaths of smoke that circled above his head."—Richmond Dispatch.

One Way Out of the Difficulty.

A gentleman had a colored servant who could not be taught to serve things at the left hand of guests at the table. At length the gentleman hit upon an ingenious expedient. Coats were then worn single breasted, and he told Caesar that he must always hand the plates and other dishes to the guests on the button-hole side. This plan worked admirably for some time, but one day there came a foreign guest who wore a double breasted coat. Poor Caesar, in dismay, looked first at one side of it and then at the other, and finally, casting a look of despair at his master, he exclaimed, "Buttons on both sides, massa!" and handed the plate right over the gentleman's head.—London Tit-Bits.

An Oriental Beauty's Ideal.

Another incontestable proof of the rapid advance of the Japanese in the civilization of the west is the following advertisement, which appeared in a Tokyo paper recently: "A young lady wishes to get married. She is very beautiful; has a rosy face, which is surrounded by dark curly hair. Her eyebrows show the form of the half moon, and the mouth is small, and pretty. She is also very rich, well read enough to admire the flowers in the daytime at the side of a life companion or at night to sing of the stars in heaven. The man whom she will choose must also be young, handsome and well educated and be ready to share the same grave with her."—New York Tribune.

Growing Sciences.

Never before was there so much interest manifest among the people in reference to astronomy and the relation of sun, moon and planets to the light, heat, electricity, magnetism and the weather changes of our earth, says Foster, the weather prophet. One will be surprised to know of the very large number of people who are closely studying these subjects. The sale of telescopes, especially those in reach of the masses, is four times greater than 10 years ago. Our newspapers recognize these facts, and many of them are tending the use of their columns to the discussion of these subjects.—Philadelphia Press.

Animal Curiosity.

A cow will approach a new object with fascinated but timorous suspicion, and a horse is even more timid, gazing at a distance for awhile, ready to flee in a moment. The monkey will snatch at everything that is new and deliberately examine it, till finding that he cannot eat it or mock mankind with it, he will drop it and let it pass from his shallow memory. There is a pathos in the slenderness of animal curiosity—it is so easily satisfied. The thought, if thought it be, usually ends with the first flush of surprise and the impression of safety.—Exchange.

Travers—There goes Peterby's wife. He's the fellow I played poker with the other night. Jagway—She looks pretty well dressed. Travers—She ought to be. She's got on my last week's salary.—New York Sun.
